MONTHLY REPORT
FEBRUARY 2023

High speed!

The rally that started in mid-December continued with the same momentum in February. The sell-off in the Nordic high-yield market last year became extreme, and the market valuation has become very attractive. Vinga's expected annual return (yield) is at 12,9%, which indicates that another big rally in 2023 is likely. At the same time, important macro indicators like Purchasing Managers Index (PMI) show that the world economy is accelerating again, which gives additional support to the Nordic high-yield market and Vinga.

/ COMMENTS - FEBRUARY /

Two new companies have entered Vinga's top ten holdings. We added to the position in Novedo Holding at price 96 (yield 12,3%) ahead of a likely acquisition of private equity in the next couple of quarters. A new owner will be forced to call the bonds at a higher price. Siriuspoint's hybrid bond was added at price 86,50 (yield 8,9%). The company chose not to call the bonds at the first call date last year due to a weak primary market. The Nordic primary market is now in full swing again and we expect Siriuspoint to call the bond at price 100 during the spring. We divested both companies with ESG scores below 30 during the month (Schletter Group and Gröntvedt).
