MONTHLY REPORT
JUNE 2024

Time to Clip Coupons Again!

We are now entering the summer period, when the likelihood of major market swings is lower. Coupons contribute most of the total return during this period, which usually benefits the high yield market. With an average coupon of 9.7%, this means the fund receives 0.8% per month in coupon income. At the same time, there is a high probability that bond prices will rise further. The Riksbank has indicated that there may be three more interest rate cuts this year. This would give a good boost to the Swedish economy and further improve the interest coverage ratio for high yield companies.

/ COMMENT - JUNE /

The major positive event of the month was when Ellos announced the refinancing of its existing bond. The sponsor, Nordic Capital, is injecting SEK 300 million of new equity while new bonds are issued. We are rolling into one of the new bonds with a yield of 12.7%. We have always believed that Nordic Capital would support the company and are now even more positive about Ellos' future prospects. Vinga Corporate Bond also participated in a rollover in Norlandia Health with a yield of 9.2% and added a new bond issued by Nofitech with a yield of 11.5%. Nofitech provides leading infrastructure for land-based fish farming.
